#StillFarming during a pandemic

As the 2020 Oregon’s Bounty goes to press, Oregon Farm Bureau (OFB), like the rest of the world, is figuring out the new normal amidst COVID-19.

Before visiting any of the nearly 300 farm stands listed in this guide, please contact the farmer or rancher first, or check their website or Facebook page. Many Farm Bureau members and their roadside stands, u-pick fields, and on-farm festivals will be impacted by the pandemic.

These are nerve-wracking times, and none of us know what’s to come.

But what’s remained constant, reliable, and inspiring in these uncertain times is how America’s farm and ranch families are continuing to tend the fields, care for the animals, and provide food for society, along with other vital agricultural products.

These hard-working people are #StillFarming and #StillRanching while many of us have been instructed to stay at home.

Toilet paper is suddenly scarce, but the U.S. food supply remains strong and secure, thanks in large part to farmers and ranchers, the people who OFB has the privilege of working for and with every day.

On p. 2, OFB President Barb Iverson shares what her farm has done after the family made the tough decision to cancel their famous Wooden Shoe tulip Festival.

On p. 5, Wallowa County Farm Bureau President Woody Wolfe shares how his sons will help out on the farm now that they’re not in school because of the virus.

In this issue, you’ll also learn about the diversity of programs OFB offers, along with cool facts about Oregon agriculture.

Whether you’re a Farm Bureau member through COUNTRY Financial, a voting or supporting member, or just a fan of OFB’s work to keep agriculture viable, vital, and sustainable, we appreciate your support.
BY ANNE MARIE MOSS

When Barb Iverson was elected as Oregon Farm Bureau’s 17th president in December 2019, she would’ve never imagined that in just a few months, a global pandemic would cause her family to cancel the 36th annual Wooden Shoe Tulip Festival in Woodburn.

But like most farmers and ranchers who’re accustomed to facing challenges and adapting to survive, Iverson and her family are proudly #StillFarming.

BI: I grew up on our family farm near Woodburn that was established in 1950 by my parents, Ross and Dorothy Iverson.

My earliest memory is of being in charge of picking the bottom half of a pole-bean row — which was the highest I could reach!

I attended Oregon State University and graduated with a degree in horticulture. I went to work for my uncle growing rhododendrons for Van Veen Nursery, a business my grandfather started.

After 12 years of an up-and-down market, I was fortunate to join Iverson Family Farms with my brothers. In 1983, I also helped start a small retail/mail-order business with my sister and sister-in-laws called Wooden Shoe Bulb Company. In 1985, we opened our tulip field to the public and today, the Wooden Shoe Tulip Festival attracts thousands to our farm every spring.

Besides tulips, the farm is growing a diversified combination of crops, including various grass seeds, vetch seed, filberts, table and wine grapes, and industrial
We also extract CBD oil from our hemp grown on the farm.

Q: What should the public know about agriculture during these uncertain times?

BI: First, we can all be thankful that the Oregon ag community is #StillFarming and #StillRanching while most of us are stuck at home. Our food supply is strong and stable.

Farmers and ranchers are adept at overcoming adversity. From the challenges with the weather or pests, to labor shortages, to constantly increasing regulations, to economic hardships, we must adapt quickly to survive.

I see the farming and ranching community doing the same with this coronavirus crisis. We’re putting our heads down and working through it to keep food on the tables, beauty in people’s yards, feed for animals, cover crops for the environment.

I’m looking forward to coming out the other side with the hope that the public has more awareness and appreciation of the great job farmers and ranchers do every day to keep the food supply chain stable and keep food on the shelves, along with providing countless other ag products.

Farmers and ranchers can make growing crops and raising animals look easy. Our food supply is abundant, safe, and of the highest quality. Until a crisis hits, the public can sometimes forget how essential agriculture is to their daily lives.

Q: What inspired you to run for OFB president?

BI: The people in Farm Bureau are like family. We speak the same language and understand each other, which is rare outside of the farming and ranching community. I realized with my long and diverse farming career, as well as my 30 years of involvement in the organization, this was a challenge I wanted to take on.

BI: The perception of what we do in agriculture isn’t matching up with reality. We need to tell our stories with lawmakers and the public more effectively. My ultimate goal is healthy rural communities. And to get there, we need healthy farms and ranches where the people who are immersed in the day-to-day care of their land can thrive.

Q: Why do you believe so strongly in Farm Bureau?

BI: I trust in those who live and work on the land of this great state: our farmers and ranchers. Their vision of sustainability is in generations, both previous and future. As a grassroots organization, Farm Bureau gives us a united voice and an effective means to advocate for agriculture and our livelihoods.

“It comes with deep sorrow that our 2020 Wooden Shoe Tulip Festival will be cancelled.”

This message was posted on the Wooden Shoe’s Facebook page (@woodenshoetulipfarm) on March 21. It was an unprecedented decision made by the Iverson family over concerns about the novel coronavirus and the safety of their visitors and employees.

“This would’ve been our 36th year of doing the festival,” said OFB President Barb Iverson, who works alongside many family members on the multigenerational farm in Clackamas County.

Since 1985, the Wooden Shoe Tulip Farm has opened its fields of gorgeous, multicolored tulips to thousands of people from around the world, creating not only unforgettable memories for visitors — but an important revenue stream for the family farm.

While most farmers and ranchers have been able to continue working during the COVID-19 outbreak and keep America’s food supply stable, others with agritourism ventures have had to shut their doors.

Within days of having to cancel the 36th annual Wooden Shoe Tulip Festival, the farm launched a Senior Delivery Program. Customers could visit WoodenShoe.com to purchase pots of tulips and daffodils to be delivered to assisted living centers, brightening the day of isolated seniors. The program gained a lot of media attention as a positive, uplifting story in the height of the COVID-19 outbreak.

“But farmers and ranchers are really a resilient group of people as a whole. We’re used to dealing with challenges and figuring things out,” said Iverson.

Customers could visit WoodenShoe.com and purchase pots of tulips or daffodils to be delivered to an assisted living center, brightening the day of quarantined seniors. Festival membership packages for the 2021 tulip season were also available for purchase.

“They’ve taken close to 600 pots from us already and just told us they need 100 more,” said Iverson. “The local community has been incredibly supportive of our farm.”
Name: Woody Wolfe, president of Wallowa County Farm Bureau

Grows: Alfalfa and timothy hay, which is shipped all over the world. The farm also grazes cattle on contract for ranchers.

“I still live in the house where I was brought home from the hospital. If either of my sons wants to farm, they will be the seventh generation,” said Wolfe.

“It’s a big weight on your shoulders. No one in the last 100 years has messed it up, so don’t start now!”

Family: “My wife Megan has an outside-the-home job, but she takes two weeks off during first cutting. She shed-stacks 3,000 or 4,000 tons of hay. She also does the farm’s books.

“My sons Weston (15) and Liam (13) have become an integral part of planting and harvest the last few years. I try to teach them whatever I’m doing.

“Since they’re home from school because of the coronavirus, this spring they’ll be harrowing fields [Editor’s note: spreading out manure and crop residue], rolling hay fields [smoothing out the ground for the haying equipment], putting seed in the ground, picking rock, cleaning hay sheds, prep-ping sheds for haying season. This will be the first year I don’t have a full-time mechanic in the shop, so we’re going through all the equipment. We’ll start irrigation prep so we can start that on the first of May.”

Environmental care: Wolfe is proactive, progressive, and practical in his approach to environmental stewardship.

“I think there’s an extreme amount of opportunity and the most amount of good to be done when production entities and ecological enhancement, restoration, [and] preservation entities work together,” he said.

“I’ve done two working lands conservation easements, and I got grants to pivotize 1,000 acres of irrigation [convert to a water-saving pivot sprinkler system],” he said.

Wolfe can still farm the land now covered in the conservation easements, but the voluntary legal agreement permanently protects those acres from future commercial or residential development.

The irrigation grants came from the Oregon Water Resources Dept. The funds were used toward converting a flood-irrigation system into a pressurized pivot sprinkler system, which applies water very efficiently.

And in August and September, Wolfe gives up his right to divert water from the Lostine River for irrigation. Instead, the water is left in stream as a means to bolster flows and promote Chinook salmon passage and spawning habitat.

“This is the time when the water creates the least amount of return for the farm, and when it’s the most valuable to the fish,” said Wolfe, who receives compensation for doing this from funds secured by the Freshwater Trust.

To maintain strong soil health in the fields used for cattle grazing, Wolfe plants cover crops like radishes, turnips, and millet; the cover crops help build soil fertility, increase biodiversity, and suppress weeds, among other things.

He also switched to no-till farming, which minimizes the number of times the soil is disrupted by equipment. The point is to reduce erosion, improve soil health, and decrease fuel costs, which happens because less tractor driving is required.

“As the cost of inputs has risen, like fuel, it’s been profitable to seek out more environmentally green avenues that are coming from a least-cost approach,” he said.

What most people don’t know about agriculture: “I don’t think the average person who lives and grew up in the city or urban area truly understands how much talent it takes to be in ag production and make it successful.”

Farming philosophy: “I’m happier if I’m always trying something new – leaving behind something that doesn’t work and adopting what does.”

Personal time: “I love spending time in the Wallowa Mountains and hunting. I put 200 to 400 miles on my hiking boots in the Eagle Caps every fall. If I’m having a bad day on the farm, I just look up at the mountains.”

So, what’s Farm Bureau exactly?

As a Farm Bureau member, you have access to many money-saving benefit programs. See p. 20, visit OregonFB.org, or call us at 800.334.6323 to learn more.

Whether you’re a Farm Bureau associate member through COUNTRY Financial — or a farmer or rancher who joined as a voting or supporting member to help keep Oregon agriculture vital and viable — OFB greatly appreciates your membership.

Established at the county level in 1919 and the state level in 1932, Farm Bureau is a grassroots, nonpartisan, nonprofit organization representing the depth and breadth of Oregon’s diverse agricultural community.

Farm Bureau gives our farmer and rancher members a united voice in the public, political, regulatory, and legal arenas. We help these families stay in business and keep doing the job they love.

OFB also offers programs like Young Farmers & Ranchers, Century Farm & Ranch, Summer Ag Institute, scholarships, ag education outreach, women’s leadership opportunities, and ag health and safety efforts, as you’ll see on the following pages.

COUNTRY Financial & Farm Bureau

To understand the partnership between Farm Bureau and COUNTRY Financial, you have to go all the way back to the early 20th century.

That’s when groups of farmers began organizing to promote agriculture and share ideas to improve their methods for raising healthy, high-quality crops and animals.

One of the most pressing needs of America’s ag community in the early 1900s was insurance protection. Working in agriculture involved many hazards that were difficult or impossible to insure. State Farm Bureaus around the country, including Oregon, established insurance companies to serve their members.

In 1945, the COUNTRY insurance company was established in Illinois, and by the 1960s, it began to expand into other states. In 1986, COUNTRY purchased the Northwest Farm Bureau Insurance Company from the Oregon, Washington, and Nevada Farm Bureaus.

Today, Farm Bureau’s relationship with COUNTRY Financial continues in the form of an exclusive endorsement of COUNTRY’s offerings.

While providing these much-needed services to farm and ranch families and their urban neighbors, COUNTRY also supports the Young Farmers & Ranchers program, funds a $1,000 scholarship for associate members, and contributes in many ways to Farm Bureau activities throughout the year.
Meet the OFB Board

The OFB Board of Directors is comprised entirely of volunteer leaders: 22 family farmers and ranchers who take time away from their fields, crops, and livestock to guide Farm Bureau’s work at the state level.

Our board members come from all regions of the state and represent a wide variety of ag commodities, farming methods, and operation sizes. We appreciate their leadership in, passion for, and dedication to Farm Bureau and our work to keep Oregon agriculture vital, viable, and sustainable.

• 1st VP Angi Bailey owns a nursery specializing in Japanese maples in Multnomah County.
• President Barb Iversen raises industrial hemp, grass seed, squash, vetch seed, hazelnuts, wine and table grapes, and operates the Wooden Shoe Tulip Festival, which attracts over 160,000 visitors each year in Clackamas County.
• 4th VP and Women’s Advisory Council Chair Janice Flegel raises cattle and hay in Crook County.
• 3rd VP Shane Otley raises cattle and alfalfa hay and does custom hay work in Harney County.
• 2nd VP Brian Glaser farms grass seed, small grains, and a variety of specialty crops in Linn County.

• Pete Postlewait, Region 7 (Clackamas, Multnomah Counties), grows rhubarb, vegetables, and pumpkin seeds in Clackamas County.
• John Zielinski, Region 15 (Marion County), is an apple and pear orchardist.
• Oregon State University rep. Kelvin Koong
• Logan Kerns, Region 2 (Baker, Union, Wallowa Counties), is a farmer from Baker County.
• OFB EVP Dave Dillon
• Dan Andersen, Region 13 (Malheur County), is a cattle rancher.
• Dean Freeborn, Region 9 (Polk, Yamhill Counties), owns a diversified farm raising several species of grass seed, wheat, oats, alfalfa, canola, turnips, forage crops, and beef cattle in Polk County.
• Wade Flegel, Region 5 (Crook, Deschutes, Jefferson, Wheeler Counties), raises cattle and hay in Crook County.
• Jeff Thomas, Region 3 (Grant, Harney Counties), grows a variety of fruits, including cherries, apricots, peaches, nectarines, plums, pears, and apples in Grant County.
• Carol Marie Leuthold, Region 8 (Clatsop, Tillamook Counties), is a dairy farmer from Tillamook County.
• Ron Bjork, Region 11 (Jackson, Josephine Counties), raises cattle, hay, and sugar beet for seed in Jackson County.
• Lyndon Kerns, Region 4 (Klamath, Lake Counties), raises cattle and hay in Klamath County.
• Kevin Westfall, Region 12 (Coos, Curry Counties), raises cattle, hay, and timber in Coos County.
• Rick Epp, Region 16 (Lane, Douglas Counties), is a hay farmer from Douglas County.
• Mike McCarthy, Region 6 (Hood River, Sherman, Wasco Counties), is a pear and apple orchardist from Hood River County.
• KC VanNatta, Region 14 (Columbia, Washington Counties), raises cattle and timber in Columbia County.
• Matt Wood, Region 1 (Gilliam, Morrow, Umatilla Counties), is a wheat farmer from Umatilla County.
• Not pictured is Peter Kenagy, Region 10 (Benton, Lincoln, Linn Counties), whose diversified farm grows sweet corn, radishes, asparagus, grasses, and native flowers for seed in Benton County.
OFB’s outreach committees

Oregon Farm Bureau has three volunteer-led committees that focus on outreach to the public.

The OFB Ag Education Committee organizes Farm Bureau’s popular booth at Oregon Ag Fest, where thousands of attendees make their very own Dirt Baby (aka, “a farmer’s version of a Chia Pet”). The goal is to show kids how grass seed in soil, combined with water and sunlight, will grow the baby’s green “hair.”

Visit OregonFB.org/ageducation for fun ag activities, including how to make your own Dirt Baby.

Among other projects, the Ag Education Committee also organizes a Coloring Contest for kids (learn more at OregonFB.org/coloringcontest), a booth at the Oregon State Fair, and a booth at the Oregon’s Bounty Fall Harvest event at the state capitol.

During summer harvest season, the OFB Health & Safety Committee organizes a public campaign to urge drivers to share the roads safely with large, slow-moving farm equipment.

Visit OregonFB.org/safety to find OFB’s Rural Road Safety brochure and a video about what to do when approaching a large tractor driving on the road.

The committee’s web page also contains much more important health- and safety-related information especially for farmers and ranchers, from Worker Protection Standards to agritourism safety to keeping kids safe on the farm.

The OFB Women’s Advisory Council organizes a donation of around $5,000 worth of groceries to Oregon’s Ronald McDonald House Charities, offers leadership development opportunities for women in Farm Bureau, and hosts a legislative workshop and reception at the state capitol every year.

For more than 30 years, the Oregon Farm Bureau Foundation for Education has delivered educational programs to increase agricultural knowledge and understanding for all Oregonians.

The foundation’s strength is putting donation dollars to work in programs that connect farm leaders, inspire future leaders, and honor Oregon’s rich agricultural heritage. Our programs reach a wide variety of participants.

- The OFB Memorial Scholarship delivers significant scholarship dollars to students studying agriculture-related majors after high school.
- Oregon Century Farm & Ranch Program officially designates family-owned agricultural operations in business for 100 and 150 years.
- REAL Oregon offers an intensive professional development experience for future leaders in agriculture and natural resources.

- The two sessions of Summer Ag Institute host K-12 teachers on farms and ranches, awarding academic credit through Oregon State University.

We’re blessed to have a diversity of leadership, volunteers, sponsors, and donors, all of whom are dedicated to providing the highest impact for the donations received.

There are many ways to support the foundation. Make a donation, volunteer your time, or simply help spread the word about our programs, which aim to build connections between the public and Oregon agriculture.

I hope that you join us! Contact me at snoxel@OregonFB.org or visit OregonFB.org to learn more.
Ag & the environment

- Combined, U.S. agriculture, land use, and forestry are a net sink for carbon emissions, removing 172 million metric tons of CO2-equivalent emissions from the atmosphere in 2017.

- Only 9% of total U.S. greenhouse gas emissions stem from agriculture.

- Only 9% of Oregon’s annual carbon dioxide emissions stem from agriculture.

- 70% of the state’s wildlife habitat and food are provided by Oregon farmers and ranchers.

- 551,000 acres of Oregon ag land are enrolled in the Conservation Reserve Program, which helps improve water quality, prevent soil erosion, and reduce loss of wildlife habitat on private land.

- 40,000 acres of Oregon ag land are enrolled in the Conservation Reserve Enhancement Program, which focuses on streamside restoration and fish habitat.

County Farm Bureau presidents gathered in Salem on Feb. 17 to share information and ideas, get legislative updates from OFB staff, and gain tools to help them in their roles as grassroots volunteer leaders. Two new presidents are Denver Pugh of Linn County Farm Bureau and Catherine Kiyokawa of Hood River County Farm Bureau.

YF&R — Young Farmers & Ranchers — is a group within Farm Bureau specifically for members between the ages of 16 and 35.

YF&R is a great way to connect with peers working in, or interested in, Oregon agriculture. It’s a natural progression from FFA and an excellent introduction to Farm Bureau. There are collegiate chapters at Oregon State University and Klamath Community College. Find your tribe in ag!

Why join YF&R?

YF&R Leadership Conference: Typically held in the fall, the YF&R Leadership Conference is an annual event for young Farm Bureau members interested in improving their leadership and communication skills, learning about issues impacting agriculture, gaining strategies from industry experts, and making new friends.

Have fun! From ag tours to ski trips, barbecues to karaoke, YF&R members always have lots of fun. Build true friendships with peers who also care about agriculture.

Travel: Get the chance to attend conferences, social events, and tours across the state and beyond. Recent YF&R events brought members to Portland, the Oregon Coast, and Austin, Texas.

Protect & promote Oregon agriculture: Learn how the legislature impacts Oregon’s ag community — and find out how you can give agriculture a voice.

Part of being a successful farmer or rancher means speaking up and getting involved as laws are made so agriculture can remain a vital, viable, and sustainable profession.

Compete: Put your communication and farm management skills to the test through YF&R’s three competitions: the Discussion Meet, Achievement Award, and Excellence in Agriculture Award.

Inspire others: YF&R supports next-generation farmers and ranchers by offering opportunities to FFA members and college students.

Honoring Century Farms, Ranches

Green Ridge Tree Farm, owned by Wasco County Farm Bureau’s former president Fritz Ellett, is a favorite local spot to buy a Christmas tree for folks living in and around Wasco County (see the farm’s listing on p. 37).

But Ellett’s great-grandparents C.E. and Iva Belden, who founded the farm in 1919, would never have guessed that Christmas trees would comprise the bulk of the business in 2020. They started the farm by raising milk cows, chickens, and a large garden and selling milk, eggs, and butter in The Dalles. Later generations grew and packed peaches.

Thanks to a willingness to evolve with the times, combined with smart estate planning, last year the Ellett family earned Oregon Century Farm status for keeping the farm in the family, in operation, and on the same land for 100 years.

“We’re very proud of the achievement and the hard work and perseverance it took to keep it in the family for that length of time,” said Ellett, who, like his father Virgil before him, served as president of Wasco County Farm Bureau.

The award-winning Oregon Century and Sesquicentennial Farm & Ranch Program is administered by the OFB Foundation for Education. It was created to honor the hard-working Oregonians, like the Ellett family, who are to thank for our state’s rich agricultural heritage.

Since the program’s start in 1958, 1,227 Century farms and ranches have been recognized for reaching the 100-year milestone, while 46 farms have earned Sesquicentennial status for attaining 150 years. Now that’s sustainable!

The program is partially funded through a partnership with OFB, the State Historic Preservation Office, Oregon State University Libraries’ Special Collections & Archives Research Center, and community members throughout Oregon.

The deadline to apply is May 1. Learn more at CenturyFarm.OregonFB.org or contact Andréa Kuenzi at 503.400.7884, cfr@OregonFB.org.
Summer Ag Institute

Through the Summer Ag Institute (SAI), teachers get an extraordinary opportunity to learn firsthand about the people, processes, and science of Oregon agriculture.

Administered through the OFB Foundation for Education, SAI is an award-winning, three-credit, graduate-level class through Oregon State University for K-12 teachers. It’s an amazing deal at only $600.

In an action-packed, weeklong session, attendees get to tour farms and ranches, talk with ag producers, do hands-on activities, and become immersed in many aspects of this diverse, always-fascinating industry.

The goal is for educators to leave SAI with ideas, inspiration, and lesson plans for exploring agriculture in their classrooms — and to become more effective at teaching students where their food comes from.

There are two SAI sessions to choose from, one on either side of the Cascades. In SAI East, teachers visit farms and ranches raising wheat, sunflowers, seed crops, cattle, and timber. In SAI West, the focus is on Willamette Valley agriculture, which includes vegetables, berries, nuts, hops, Christmas trees, and grass seed.

Farm Bureau is a longtime supporter of SAI, with members volunteering to give tours of their farms and ranches and hosting teachers for an overnight stay (always a highlight for attendees). County Farm Bureaus also sponsor SAI meals and make generous contributions to the program to help keep registration costs low.

Since its first summer in 1989, SAI has enrolled more than 1,200 Oregon teachers with the goal of helping to promote the importance of agriculture to society. Please spread the word about SAI to the teachers in your life!

Photos sought for 2021 calendar

The award-winning calendar celebrates all aspects of Oregon agriculture: the products, people, production, enjoyment, landscape — anything that depicts the beauty, technology, culture, appreciation, or tradition of family farming and ranching in this great state.

- Photos must involve farming or ranching in Oregon.
- Photos must be taken in a horizontal format to fit a calendar layout.
- Selected images MUST be available in high-resolution, 300 dpi at a size of at least 11” x 8.5”; otherwise they will be too grainy to enlarge.
- Digital images must be submitted in .jpg format.
- Photos with people may require a signed photo release. Please don’t send photos of people you don’t know.
- There’s no limit to the number of photos you can submit.
- You don’t have to be a Farm Bureau member to participate.

Submit your images in one of three ways:

- Email your digital photo(s) to annemarie@OregonFB.org.
- Upload photos to the contest dropbox found at OregonFB.org/calendar.
- Mail a thumb drive, CD, or prints to Anne Marie Moss, Oregon Farm Bureau, Suite 200, 1320 Capitol St. NE, Salem, OR 97301.

Include with your submission:

- Your name, address, phone number, and email address
- When and where the photo was taken

Deadline: Sept. 15, 2020
Contact: Anne Marie Moss at 503.399.1701, annemarie@OregonFB.org

Rules: By submitting a photograph in a contest, you agree to be bound by all terms and conditions set forth by Oregon Farm Bureau, including the grant of rights set forth below: if you do not agree with these terms and conditions, do not submit an entry. By submitting a photograph in the contest, you acknowledge and agree that OFB shall have the right (without limitation or further compensation to you) to edit, adapt, modify, reproduce, publish, promote, display, and otherwise use your entry in any way it sees fit, including the right to publish your entry online and in print with or without attribution. By submitting entries, you are declaring that you hold the copyright to the images entered or that you have secured the right to distribute the images without restriction. Entries judged inappropriate by OFB for any reason will not be eligible for prizes.
Farm Bureau members can get $500 Bonus Cash on a Ford vehicle, big savings on hotels and rental cars, and many more money-saving discounts! Learn more at OregonFB.org or call 800.334.6323.

Oregon Farm Bureau (OFB) is a grassroots, nonpartisan, nonprofit, general agriculture organization representing the interests of farming and ranching families in the public and policymaking arenas.

Farm Bureau is Oregon’s most inclusive agriculture organization. We believe that all commodity types, farming methods, and operation sizes are valuable and necessary.

First established in Oregon at the county level in 1919 and the state level in 1932, Farm Bureau is organized in all 36 counties. We help Oregon’s farm and ranch families stay in business and keep doing the job they love.
